

Journal article - Electronic

Author. (Year). Title of article. Title of Journal, Volume (Issue), page number(s) doi # OR Retrieved from URL

Hoelterhoff, M., & Chung, M. (2015). Death anxiety resilience: a mixed methods investigation. Psychiatric Quarterly, 88 (3), 635-652. doi:10.1007/s11126-016-9483-6 (or if no doi use: Retrieved from <https://link.springer.com/article/10.1007%2Fs11126-016-9483-6>)

Online resources

Author or organization. (Year or last updated). Title of site or page. Retrieved from URL

Department for Education. (2015). Working together to safeguard children. Retrieved from <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/working-together-to-secure-children-2>

Remember - you can find many different types of information on the internet such as journal articles, reports and images. You should always reference according to the type of information first and then the fact that you have found it online.

Citation

Always includes the author's surname and the year of publication. Include page numbers only for quotations or paraphrases, not for summaries.

Authors can be part of the text or support the point e.g.

- Cottrell (2008, p.156) argues that "...
- New research (Lee and Chung, 2009) shows ...

Multiple authors

1 or 2 authors are always cited.
3-5 authors are all cited the first time and then use the first author plus et al for subsequent citations. e.g. Smith et al.
For 6 or more authors you can use the et al format on all occasions.

All authors must be included in the Reference List

A very quick guide To APA referencing

This leaflet is intended as a very quick guide to APA referencing. For more information and examples see:

What is referencing?

You need to acknowledge other people's ideas and reference the sources that you have used in your assignments. This is done in two parts:

- a brief citation which appears within the text and refers to
- the full reference which is listed at the end of your work.

Everything cited should appear in the Reference List, in alphabetical order, by author's surname.
