

Options with a degree in Criminology

What skills will you develop?

Criminology graduates are able to:

- demonstrate an understanding of the social and personal aspects of crime, victimisation and responses to crime and deviance
- display a familiarity with the justice system
- generate and evaluate evidence of diverse kinds and draw appropriate conclusions
- think critically and make reasoned arguments and ethical judgments
- analyse and interpret data
- write reports
- be self-reliant and work with initiative, managing time and workloads effectively
- work well within a multi-disciplinary team
- deal with difficult situations, problem solve and make decisions
- present ideas and arguments verbally and in writing; and either formally or informally

These are just a sample of jobs where a Criminology degree would be a useful background or relevant first step prior to further training or study.

- Adult guidance worker
- Charity officer
- Community development worker
- Crime scene investigator
- Detective
- Housing manager/officer
- Local government officer
- Paralegal
- Police officer
- Prison officer
- Probation officer
- Social researcher
- Social worker
- Higher education lecturer
- Solicitor
- Youth worker

What other career options are there?

Many employers seek graduates with a good degree (usually a 2.2 or higher), and over 80% of employers don't have a preference for the subject studied. These are some of the areas you could also consider. Some of these will involve further study or training:

- Accountancy
- Advertising
- Banking
- Charity and voluntary work
- Civil Service
- Events management
- Finance
- Hospitality
- HR
- Insurance
- Local government
- Marketing
- Politics
- Public Relations
- Recruitment
- Sales and retail
- Tourism
